

NFL Week 5: Struggling Cardinals road favorites over 49ers

The Cardinals and 49ers take center stage on Thursday Night Football. Both teams, sitting at 1-3 in the standings, are currently tied for last in the NFC West division. Carson Palmer left last Sunday's game with concussion symptoms and has not been cleared to play.

MATCHUP	STORYLINE	PICK
(Thur.) ARI at SF  	Cardinals QB Carson Palmer is out due to a concussion, but ...	ARI 24-16
NE at CLE  	What's the over/under on Brady TDs – in the first half?	NE 48-13
CHI at IND  	Colts' experiment of no bye after London game works ... barely	IND 27-23
TEN at MIA  	Dolphins well rested; might be only thing they have going right now	TEN 22-20
WAS at BAL  	Redskins have won two straight without being very impressive	BAL 21-20
HOU at MIN  	Can Texans prove themselves against quality competition? Nope	MIN 20-13
NYJ at PIT  	Right now, Steelers can manhandle anybody	PIT 30-17
PHI at DET  	This one scares us; are Eagles ready to be 4-0? ... don't think so	DET 28-27
ATL at DEN  	This one doesn't scare us, but Broncos' defense does	DEN 24-13
CIN at DAL  	Finally, Dak Prescott faces a good D; not a good thing for Dallas	CIN 28-14
BUF at LA  	Both have made a nice turnaround; Rams grab NFC West lead	LA 23-21
SD at OAK  	Chargers are mastering close defeats; here's another	OAK 35-31
NYG at GB  	Giants are doomed against top QB until secondary gets healthy	GB 30-20
(Mon.) TB at CAR  	Cam Newton's status uncertain; Panthers win with or without him	CAR 23-21