Welcome

What makes Cottonwood such a great place to live, work and visit? Many people agree that our many “mom and pop” owned businesses give Cottonwood a unique, “authentic” small town feel. Most of our businesses are locally owned by your friends and neighbors and they work hard every day to provide quality products and services for their customers.

This directory contains a listing of the wonderful businesses that make up the Cottonwood Chamber of Commerce. Businesses who are members of the Chamber of Commerce are the ones who take pride in their businesses and their community. They know how important it is to support the organization that works hard to support the local community. In addition, they support many local non-profit organizations, youth sports teams and community events. By supporting these local businesses, you are supporting our entire community.

We are so blessed to live in a location that many people travel great distances to visit. There are so many fun things to do and places to visit right here in our own backyard.

We love sharing information about all of these places with visitors and locals. If you need ideas, come see us. And, when you visit a local business and have a great experience, share it with a friend.

Both your friend and the business will be glad you did.

Sense of community is Cottonwood's greatest strength

Cottonwood, Arizona "Heart of the Verde Valley" -- Have you noticed that Cottonwood continues to be in the news. Over the last few years, there have been an abundance of coverage on TV, in the newspapers, and countless magazine articles speaking to what a great place Cottonwood is to visit and to live.

This does not happen by accident but because of an ongoing collaboration and team effort between the City of Cottonwood, Old Town Association, the wine industry, and the business community through the Cottonwood Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber not only assists with promoting local businesses, it also works hard at promoting the Verde Valley as a great place to visit and live.

What makes Cottonwood so appealing? What makes someone who visits here want to live here in our little corner of the world? Is it the moderate climate? The scenic and environmental beauty? Is it the sense of community and people who live here?

I think it is all of the above. All of these things contribute to the attractiveness of Cottonwood and the Verde Valley, but in my opinion, none more than the sense of community and people who live here.

For many generations, people have chosen to make this place home, raising families, building businesses, homes, schools, parks, ball fields and churches. Many have, and continue to contribute to making Cottonwood a special place.

So what can you do to help our growing small town to remain a special place and the Heart of the Valley? Simple, continue to foster the sense of community, remain that friendly civic oriented small town that we find so special; by giving, volunteering your time, and supporting our schools, churches, youth sports, and local businesses! When you shop local first, you help create local jobs and you put more money into the community in which

Cottonwood's success tied to Verde Valley wine industry

It has been over a decade since John Marcus first planted wine grapes in Echo Canyon, a side hollow off Oak Creek, down Page Springs Road.

It took a while for others to grasp the idea that wine grapes would find the Verde formation's mixture of mudstone and limestone, along with the diurnal temperature swings that define the central highlands, were ideal for growing grapes.

Within a few years others joined Marcus -- first Ray and Ray Freitas planted a vineyard in Cottonwood. Then Eric Glomski opened Page Springs Cellars down stream from Echo Canyon. Oak Creek Vineyards and Javalina Leap soon followed.

Today, there are vineyards up and down the Valley from Jerome to Camp Verde and more acreage being planted every year.

But it wasn't until 2007, when Cottonwood City Manager Doug Bartosh and Economic Development Director Casey Rooney began looking for opportunities to grow their community that anyone put two and two together.

Looking for a way to revitalize Old Town, the two helped create the Verde Valley Wine Consortium. The consortium in turn helped bring tasting rooms to the downtown. And the rest as they say is history.

“We saw what was going on out in the country and after meeting with the winery owners Doug said to me, “This industry is going somewhere, and we need to help make it happen,” says Rooney.

Today in Old Town there are five tasting rooms and seven restaurants pouring local wines.

Together they are not only drawing thousands of visitor, they are serving as anchors for dozens of other businesses.

“The City of Cottonwood has embraced the wine industry and the industry has embraced us. Ninety-nine percent of the space in Old Town is now being utilized.

“We pride ourselves in being at the center. But we also see ourselves as a model for other communities wanting to help expand the industry and be a part of

In 2015, the Cottonwood adopted a new city logo declaring the city “The Heart of Arizona Wine Country.” it,” says Rooney.

In addition to what’s happening downtown, the wine biz has started a buzz uptown, specifically at the Verde Campus of Yavapai College. Although technically in the corporate limits of Clarkdale, the school’s new enology and viticulture programs are furthering the cause and helping to establish the valley, and Cottonwood as the center of the state’s wine industry.

In November, Yavapai College officially opened its new wine tasting room on the Verde Campus Friday. The tasting room is open to the public Thursday to Sunday, noon to 6 p.m., and people can try and buy bottles of five types of student-crafted wines: Viognier, Grenache, Syrah, Merlot and Petite Syrah. The college wine center is a working model of a winery in Clarkdale with 12,000 vines planted on 12-acres of land and prepares students for jobs in the wine industry. Rooney estimates that the industry is nowhere near its potential.

“It a business that feeds on itself,” he says, “Success breeds success.”

Cottonwood’s premier summer wine-centric event is the annual Tilted Earth Wine and Music Festival. The 2016 Tilted Earth event is scheduled for the weekend of June 16-18.

Cottonwood the economic hub of Verde Valley

Cottonwood was established in 1879 and became incorporated in 1960.

The city is near the center of Arizona. It lies east of Mingus Mountain and the Black Hills in Yavapai County at the 3,300-foot elevation. Its location between Phoenix and Flagstaff makes it a thriving community.

The city serves as a center for professional services and manufacturing. There are several dining as well as hotels and bed & breakfast establishments.

Verde Valley Medical Center is one of the finest diagnostic and treatment centers in Northern Arizona. The hospital is continually expanding in size and services.

Other major employers in the area include Cottonwood-Oak Creek and Mingus Union High school districts and Verde Valley Medical Center, as well as Mold-in-Graphics and Salt River Materials Group in nearby Clarkdale and Cliff Castle Casino near Camp Verde.

The travel and tourism industry is a significant factor in Cottonwood's economic profile, and it's not strictly retail business. National forests, state parks, national monuments and wilderness areas in the surrounding area attract hundreds of thousands of tourists each year.

The Verde River supports one of the state's prime riparian habitats and flows through the center of Cottonwood. Riverfront Park and Dead Horse Ranch State Park provide access to the Verde River greenway on opposite sides of the waterway.

Dead Horse Ranch State Park has undergone expansion in recent years. New lagoons have been created for increased water recreation and the RV capability and camping expanded. The park is home of the Verde Valley Birding & Nature Festival, one of many annual events that incorporates nature and fun for the residents and visitors of the Verde Valley.

Mingus Mountain, at 7,700 feet, is a world-class mecca for hang gliding enthusiasts with regular weekend launches. The area is also popular for balloonists and skydivers. Of course, the spectacular Red Rocks of Sedona are always a visual lure.

Old Town Cottonwood has gone through a renewal and revival and is now alive with restaurants, art galleries and shops. In the summer a weekly farmers market is full of produce and fun. There are numerous attractions and fairs, including Walkin' on Main event.

Cottonwood annually hosts the free Fantastic Family Fourth of July, Verde River Days, Rhythm 'n' Ribs, a fall carnival, Chocolate Walk and the popular Christmas Parade

The city hosts a library, a new Recreation Center and aquatic facility, civic center, four parks, a movie theater, swimming pool, softball and Little League fields, soccer fields and tennis courts.

There are also an abundance of senior facilities and retirement centers.

The Verde Campus of Yavapai College on the border with neighboring Clarkdale is a growing member of the community, offering day and evening classes and vocational education. For four-year higher education, Northern Arizona University is in Flagstaff but offers courses in association with the Community College.

The city is governed by a mayor, council and city manager. A professional police and fire department is staffed with full-time and reserve personnel.

The city is near Interstate-17 accessible from Arizona State Route 89A and SR 260. From Phoenix, drive north to exit 287, then northwest on SR 260. From Flagstaff, drive south to exit 287 or drive through the magnificent Oak Creek Canyon on SR 89A, which travels south through Sedona and on to Cottonwood.

- Mayor: Diane Joens 634-4112

of many annual events that incorporates nature and fun for the residents and visitors of the Verde Valley.

Mingus Mountain, at 7,700 feet, is a world-class mecca for hang gliding enthusiasts with regular weekend launches. The area is also popular for balloonists and skydivers. Of course, the spectacular Red Rocks of Sedona are always a visual lure.

Old Town Cottonwood has gone through a renewal and revival and is now alive with restaurants, art galleries and shops. In the summer a weekly farmers market is full of produce and fun. There are numerous attractions and fairs, including Walkin' on Main event.

Cottonwood annually hosts the free Fantastic Family Fourth of July, Verde River Days, Rhythm 'n' Ribs, a fall carnival, Chocolate Walk and the popular Christmas Parade

The city hosts a library, a new Recreation Center and aquatic facility, civic center, four parks, a movie theater, swimming pool, softball and Little League fields, soccer fields and tennis courts.

There are also an abundance of senior facilities and retirement centers.

The Verde Campus of Yavapai College on the border with neighboring Clarkdale is a growing member of the community, offering day and evening classes and vocational education. For four-year higher education, Northern Arizona University is in Flagstaff but offers courses in association with the Community College.

The city is governed by a mayor, council and city manager. A professional police and fire department is staffed with full-time and reserve personnel.

The city is near Interstate-17 accessible from Arizona State Route 89A and SR 260. From Phoenix, drive north to exit 287, then northwest on SR 260. From Flagstaff, drive south to exit 287 or drive through the magnificent Oak Creek Canyon on SR 89A, which travels south through Sedona and on to Cottonwood.

The Cottonwood Chamber Drives Business To You!

The efforts of your local Chamber Of Commerce increase the growth and quality of the Verde Valley. Our marketing efforts bring new people and more business to the Cottonwood region. These efforts drive the engine of growth in Cottonwood – whether you are a direct beneficiary or trickle-down recipient; more people coming to our town benefits everyone in this vibrant business community.

Cottonwood Chamber Member Benefits:

- Networking and Business Referrals – Meet local professionals and business owners at our educational networking mixers and breakfasts (Too busy? Send a representative in your stead to promote your business and develop new connections).
- Marketing Opportunities – Market to our 550+ members through multiple channels including: Monthly Newsletter, Chamber Website, or at our Local Chamber Office (display your brochures and/or business cards).
